J.D.C. In Poland Ousted; Spent $20,000,000 In Thirty Years

The American Joint Distribution Committee has been directed to wind up its relief and rehabilitation activities in Poland. William Bein, director of the organization's work disclosed at Warsaw. The order, issued by Wladyslaw Wolski, the Minister of Public Administration, followed close upon similar action to oust the international committee of the Red Cross and the Cooperative for American Remittances of Europe (CARE).

The Polish Government has thus virtually completed its plan, begun last March, of ending all foreign relief operations in Poland and assuming some of the ousted agencies' functions.

The only large-scale non-governmental relief organization which has not yet been ordered to put an end to its activities is American Relief for Poland. A spokesman for that organization told Edward R. Morrow, of the New York Times, that he did not expect a similar notice, but anticipated greater activity on its part as a result of the other agencies' departure. Other welfare workers said they felt the spokesman's optimism was unjustified and predicted that this organization too would soon be asked to leave.

In the course of its thirty-year history in Poland, the Joint Distribution Committee has been one of the major relief organizations. It has subsidized orphanages, homes for the aged and hospitals, and established free loan banks to help Jewish artisans. Since 1945, it has poured more than $20,000,000 worth of aid into the country. Not all of this aid has been distributed to Jews, the organization's record says.

Following the pattern of previous notifications, M. Wolski told Bein that the time for emigration [illegible], which was only until the end of the year. The American Joint Distribution Committee still maintains organizations in Czechoslovakia and Hungary. It has wound up its activities in Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, and was ousted from Rumania with other foreign relief organizations.

It was not known how the agency's departure would affect the emigration and was prepared to

He said that Jews had the same rights as other Polish citizens to Government aid in the maintenance of schools, homes and hospitals. Consequently, M. Wolski concluded, the Government had to ask the organization to submit a plan for winding up its affairs.

Mr. Bein said although he had at first sought three months in which to accomplish the liquidation, it is believed that the Government will give the organization

Ask Neutral Study Of Iraq Jews

Leaders of seven national Jewish organizations appealed to the U. S. State Department to send a "commission of neutral observers" to Iraq to investigate charges that the Iraqi Government is persecuting the Jewish minority there.

The group consisted of Milton King, vice-president of the American Jewish Committee; Rabbi Irving Miller, chairman of the executive committee of the American Jewish Congress; Louis Lipsky, chairman of the American Zionist Council; Frank Goldman, president of Bnai Brith; Adolph Held, president of the Jewish Labor Committee; Jackson J. Holtz, national commander, Jewish War Veterans, president of the Synagogue Council of America.

The request followed a recent State Department assertion that current reports of the number of Jews arrested in Iraq were exaggerated and that among those arrested were many "understood to be under charges of having violated specific Iraqi laws."

An eleven-page memorandum protesting this interpretation was [illegible]

"The basic allegation is not that the Government of Iraq has been arresting Jews in violation of its own laws, but that the laws themselves are in violation of the United Nations Charter, fundamental human rights and the generally accepted principles of civil liberty."

The delegation urged the dispatch of a special investigation commission to Iraq "in view of the impossible burden which a necessarily exhaustive investigation would impose upon the foreign service of the State Department."

"Operation Magic Carpet" Moves 20,000 To Israel From Yemen

The transfer by airplane of 29,000 Eastern Jews from Aden, at the bottom of the Arabian peninsula, to Israel some 1,600 airmiles to the north in one of the most dramatic mass immigration movements of all time, was made known by the Joint Distribution Committee, American Jewish relief agency which carried out the operation, funds being furnished by the United Jewish Appeal. Nearly 20,000 of the immigrants, mainly Yemenite Jews, were flown in September and October, and the operation, which has had the full cooperation of the Government of Israel and the Jewish Agency for Palestine, continues at the present time. Several thousand Yemenite Jews still await air passage in a giant reception camp near Aden City.

Simultaneous announcement of the great airborne movement was made in New York by Edward M. M. Warburg, JDC chairman, and in Paris by Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, chairman of JDC's European Council and director of its great overseas relief, resettlement and reconstruction operations in twenty-three countries which will cost more than $60,000,000 this year. The air evacuation from Aden alone has cost more than $2,000,000.

In their joint statement, Mr. Warburg and Dr. Schwartz noted that the bulk of the airborne immigrants are arriving in Israel at a time when the new state has already accepted over 300,000 immigrants from Europe and North Africa since its establishment on May 8, 1948. The two JDC leaders stated:

"The decision of the Government of Israel and the Jewish Agency for Palestine, which runs the immigration centers, to accept additional tens of thousands of Jews from Yemen and thereby add to [illegible] by the Provisional Council.

JDC officials first estimated that Yemen, a land where vital statistics are unknown, held 25,000 Jews as of 1948. But now that more than that number have already been brought to Israel, the figure has been revised upwards to a possible 50,000.

For the thousands of Yemenite Jews who have boarded the planes which have taken them to Israel, the experience seems a genuine miracle. Few, if any, of the immigrants ever saw a plane until they reached Aden. But the Yemenites, who have preserved an ancient Hebrew culture, and most of whom speak and read Hebrew, see their deliverance as prophesied in the Bible, quoting from Exodus 19: IV: "We have seen . . . how I bare you on eagle's wings and brought you unto myself."

In Israel, the Yemenites who have already come have proven

British protectorate bordering the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, gave permission for the Yemenite Jews to enter the country for temporary stay and for JDC-financed planes to pick them up and fly them to Israel.

To reach the Aden-Yemen border, it is necessary for departing Jews to travel hundreds of miles from the interior of Yemen, crossing a region of few roads, mountainous plateau, and desert sands. Those who have made the journey have, for the most part, travelled by foot, leaving their possessions behind in Yemen. They have arrived at the border reception camps in rags and emaciated from their journey.

From the border camps the would-be immigrants have been transferred to Hashid camp, a gigantic reception center about ten miles outside of Aden City. Here they have been fed and cared for by the JDC in cooperation with the Jewish Agency. A staff of some 70 doctors, nurses, clerks and cooks, both American and Israelis, serve in the camp at the present time.

The immigrants are flown to Israel, 125 passengers at a time, in four-motored C-54's operated by the Near East Air Transport Company, chartered by JDC. The big load is made possible by the fact that the average weight of the Yemenite Jews, who are small in stature, is 85 pounds. Seats which normally hold two American passengers hold three and four Yemenites.

The initial air evacuation of Jews from Aden took place last December and January, when some 7,000 Yemenite and Adenite Jews were flown to Israel by JDC in a movement dubbed "Operation Magic Carpet." The [illegible] evacuation was resumed [illegible] in

Meet Over Bias In Colleges

Inequality of opportunity for higher education is based on a number of factors, often interrelated, and varying in different parts of the country, a group of educators was told in Chicago, Ill.

The group, numbering about 100, was assembled for a two-day conference on discrimination in college admissions, the first national meeting of its kind. The conference was called by the American Council on Education, with the cooperation of the Anti-Defamation League of Bnai Brith.

Ten questions on "The over-all problem of barriers to higher education" were raised by Floyd W. Reeves, Professor of Administration at the University of Chicago and chairman of the council's committee on discriminations in college admissions.

These were on restricted curricula and inadequate educational facilities, limited financial resources of applicants, geographic barriers, differences among youth in their desire for higher education, the extent to which college admission techniques lend themselves to discriminatory practices, applicant's sex, race, religion and, national origin and "the relationship between the types of control of higher institutions and the (admission) policies and practices of such institutions."

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, vice-president in charge of professional schools of the University of Illinois, stated that the assumptions on which the gathering met were that some colleges and universities "do discriminate on grounds other than ability and character," discrimination is "dangerous and unjustifiable" and the belief that "a national conference of educators should be able to formulate and obtain actions which would lead to the acceptance and institution of corrective programs."

Left $8,000,000 To Foundation

Solomon R. Guggenheim, philanthropist and mining executive, who died November 3 at his Sands Point, L. I., estate at the age of 68, left $8,000,000 to the foundation bearing his name, according to his will filed for probate at Mineola, Long Island, N.Y.

The rest of the estate with the exception of a number of bequests to nieces and nephews and to former employees and associates, was left to his widow, Irene R. Guggenheim, three daughters and four grandchildren.

The will, a fifty-five page typewritten document, was dated last January 7. In addition there are two codicils, dated May 12 and July 8.

The will suggested that $2,000,000 of the $8,000,000 left to the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation be used to construct a museum at Fifth Avenue and Eighty-ninth Street, adjacent to the Museum of Non-Objective Paintings at 1071 Fifth Avenue. The present museum is operated by the foundation which Mr. Guggenheim set up in 1937 to encourage non-objective art.

Mr. Guggenheim left to the foundation his extensive personal collection of non-objective paintings and many other valuable paintings, but the use of the latter is reserved for his widow during her life.

He also willed to the foundation the plot of land at Fifth Avenue

U.S. FEDERAL BOARD DENOUNCES D.P. ENTRY LAW; SEEKS REVISION

The present U. S. displaced-persons law is "overly complicated, unjust, unfair and discriminatory," the Displaced Persons Commission said, in its second semi-annual report to President Truman and to Congress.

Urging earliest possible enactment of corrective amendments, the commission warned that efforts to bring to the United States the authorized total of 205,000 displaced persons before the deadline of June 30, 1950, might fail because of the pattern of restrictions, limitations, preferences and priorities established by the law, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Amendments supported by the commission were passed by the House June 2, but the Senate failed to take action chiefly as a result of opposition led by Senator Pat McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada, and the bill was recommitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee October 15. The committee was instructed to report a new bill by January 25.

The report, signed by Commissioners Ugo Carusi, Edward M. O'Connor and Harry N. Rosenfield, said only 100,498 D.P.'s had been admitted to the United States by October 31, with an additional 5,082 persons en route.

It charged that the United States had not done its share. This country had taken only fifteen per cent of the displaced persons resettled by June 30. Other countries have taken a larger number—Israel gave refuge to over 123,000 and England welcomed just over 100,000 plus almost 150,000 members of the Polish Army.

[illegible] at least 400,000 additional 300,000 [illegible] people of limited resettlement possibilities. In the former group are about 50,000 Lutherans, and "many thousands of other Protestants will be left homeless in Germany alone, not to speak of Austria or Italy," the commission reported.

To charges that Communist agents and other subversive elements have entered the country disguised as D. P.'s, the commission contended that present security measures were adequate and effective. Besides the security safeguards under the normal immigration laws, at least seven additional protections were employed in the displaced-persons program, the commission pointed out. These were:

1. "The commission has issued an iron-bound instruction that no one who was ever a member, for any reason, of the Communist, Nazi or Fascist parties, or related parties, is admissible into the United States under the program.

2. "There is a very extensive field of investigation conducted overseas by the Counter-Intelligence Corps of the United States Army, making use of all the vast intelligence resources of the United States. This comprises a careful, on-the-spot personal investigation involving twenty-one separate investigating processes applied to each and every person prior to the issuance of a visa.

3. "There is a special additional investigation in connection with displaced persons whose country of origin has been overrun by the Communists.

4. "There are special laboratories set up for the examination of documents relating to eligibility.

5. "There is a pre-examination of all displaced persons by the Immigration and Naturalization Service overseas as well as another examination upon arrival in the United States. Under this law the Immigration Service not only has a double check, here and overseas, but the immigration inspector has the full and complete file. In this way, the immigration inspector and the consul each make an independent [illegible]

The proposed amendments would contain an added protection that upon arrival each D.P. must take and subscribe to an oath that he is not and has never been a member of the Communist party or of any organization designated by the Attorney General as a Communist organization, or a member of any movement which is or has been hostile to the United

HANDS IN TRAINING... FOR ONTARIO

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity.

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy—that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

Our bodies need plenty of iron to supply us with healthy red blood and good circulation. Excellent sources of it are the variety meats [illegible]. The wise housewife will serve at least one of these foods each week.

During the winter months, heating, and ventilation are major health factors. You can do a lot towards keeping your family healthy by making sure your home has the right kind of heating and fresh air control. Coughs and colds often follow in the wake of improperly heated and ventilated homes.

N.Y. Rally Scores Plan For Holy City

Representative Emanuel Celler, Democrat, of New York speaking at a "Save Jerusalem" rally at Manhattan Center, 311 West Thirty-fourth Street, New York, criticized the United Nations proposal to internationalize Jerusalem as creating a third state in Palestine alongside the present Israeli and Arab states. The rally was sponsored by the American Zionist Council, which is made up of major Zionist organizations in the United States.

"What madness is this—the setting up of a third state in Palestine, which is exactly what the internationalization plan calls for?" Mr. Celler said. "Will the U. N. thrust aside the abject history of its own failure when internationalization was first attempted? Will it persist in disregarding the tragic evidence of the senseless destruction, the bombardment, the starvation, the pestilences which overtook Jewish Jerusalem when the U. N. could not find any means of controlling the situation?"

Mr. Celler asserted that internationalization would not mean the dissipation of any problem but on the contrary would "pile problem upon problem."

Other speakers included Representative Jacob K. Javits, Republican, of New York; Louis Lipsky, chairman of the council; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of "The Christian Herald"; Berl Locker, chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, and Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the American Section of the agency.

The audience adopted a resolution criticizing the U. N. plan and urging the American government to support in the U. N. what was called a more realistic approach to the problem.

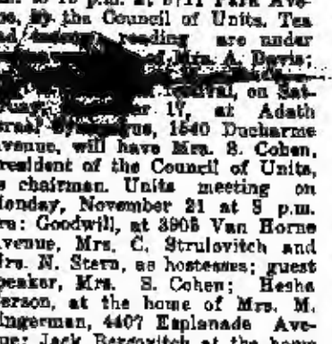
NATURE UNSPOILED



YOURS TO ENJOY

The SCREECH OWL'S name is a misnomer. He doesn't screech at all—the best he can do is a quavering whinny, which doesn't sound at all savage! He lives on mice and grasshoppers for the most part, and nests in hollow trees, particularly in old orchards. He should always be protected.

We know that Jewish education can no longer be tolerated as a haphazard uplanned affair. Modern Jewish education has valuable and effective methods at its disposal. Until now, these methods, where applied, have been limited almost exclusively to the more progressive schools in larger cities. It is up to us now to think in terms of bringing the latest theories and most modern educational methods within reach of the smaller Jewish communities." Shekel Manifesto

November 15, 1949 — December 31, 1949 has been proclaimed the period for the Shekel Registration in Canada for the years 5709-5710.

The past two years have been momentous in Jewish history. They witnessed the establishment of the State of Israel. The epoch-making ingathering of the exiles, that has brought more than a quarter of a million of homeless Jews to the Jewish homeland in the space of twelve months, has introduced new elements of change into the State of Israel. It has also confronted the World Zionist Organization and its component parts with new problems and new responsibilities.

What those responsibilities are to be, what contribution the World Zionist movement can make towards discharging them, what is to be the future of the World Zionist Organization — these are subjects that will be on the agenda of the World Zionist Congress in June 1950. For the first time in its history the Congress will be held in Jerusalem.

The Zionist movement in Canada has played a significant part in the creation and development of the Jewish State. Its voice has been heard in the councils of the World Zionist movement and at Zionist Congresses. The Twenty-Third Congress should, therefore, see the largest delegation ever sent from Canada to the Zionist parliament.

We call upon Canadian Jewry to enroll in the Shekel registration that will determine the number of Canadian delegates to the Congress. Enroll as a member of the World Zionist Organization through the Shekel Registration that will give every Jew the right to vote for the election of delegates to the next Congress and help to decide the future of the World Zionist Organization, as well as the vital role it will still have to play for the strengthening of Medinat Israel and Jewish life in general.

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

"If Ye Break Faith"

"And they shall beat their swords into plowshares,
And their spears into pruning-hooks;
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they learn war any more."

In a mood of pessimism, because the war sacrifices brought on freedom's altar did not result in the fruits of lasting peace, we often say what a shocking waste of precious lives these dead constitute. This cynicism is understandable but does not rest on reason. We make the sweeping statement that war settles nothing and this statement is a half truth and leads ultimately to falsehood. Of course, war is a poor method of settling disputes, no one will deny. But wars do settle some things, although these bring with them new problems.

Certainly, the battle of Waterloo freed Europe from the rule and dictatorial dominance of a Napoleon. Certainly, the American Revolutionary War freed the colonies from the hands and despotic rule of a King George III. Indeed, who would dare say that the war which the Israeli army waged against the Arabs did not settle the very freedom and the very existence of the State of Israel? And, certainly, the last war did destroy the myth of a German master race and did help cleanse Europe from the foul influence of Nazism.

It is because men died on the altar of freedom that we in turn live today in security and freedom. Selfless gallantry is never a waste. It constitutes an inspiring example for all to pursue idealism and to live by principle.

When we think of these precious dead we are aroused from our selfishness and we are reminded of our sacred obligation to fellow man, and to country.

Ours ought not be a mood of cynicism but rather a mood of thanksgiving that brave souls forfeited all they had, even life itself, that we might live in an atmosphere of liberty. These boys [illegible] on our [illegible] were possessed of dreams; they loved their parents; they had their sweethearts: they had their plans and hopes for the future. But all these they gave up and rose to the great challenge of duty when their country called them. Not two minutes of silence should we observe on this remembrance day, rather should we spend hours in meditation and reflection and come to realize that the sacrifices of the precious dead constitute the driving motive for all of us to toil for peace in the face of repeated discouragements.

Legally we are still in a state of war for we have not as yet, after four years since the shooting stopped, written any peace treaties with our principle enemies. Certainly, the situation in Germany does not present a pleasant picture. What we have of Germany is that of two puppet states manipulated by powers whose first interest is in using these puppets as weapons in the cold war. How long will this cold war between East and West continue? The United Nations is struggling manfully to build the peace but people everywhere seem to be thinking of another world catastrophy.

This day should remind us Canadians that the comradeship in arms which Jews and Christians showed and lived on fields of battle in defence of democracy must be matched in civil life so that democracy may be meaningful and be made real. Do we not mock the memory of the precious thousands of Canadian dead, who gave up life itself in order that freedom should prevail and that every Canadian of whatever creed or race be given opportunity to live in security and peace, when we discriminate against a fellow citizen?

On this day the dead are prodding the living to build the peace and to dedicate themselves to outlaw war, an out-worn institution in human life. We got rid of slavery and the duel system and certainly the day will come when war will be no more and man shall have reached a spiritual maturity which will make for universal brotherhood. To this the dead summon us.

We must not break faith with our precious dead. We must toil and labour as soldiers of peace and dedicate ourselves in every way that we may be rescued from collective death. We must employ wisdom and summon patience and we must leave no course untried that will at last halt the world's march of death and save mankind. Behold, the prophet Isaiah's dream will some day be realized and Israel's mission of universal peace will some day be woven in the very fabric of mankind and may that day come soon and speedily.

assist in the final exodus of Jews from Poland under the Warsaw Government's recently liberalized passport policy.

The Government is now issuing approximately 1,500 passports a month. It is estimated that approximately 25,000 Jews would like to leave under the current program, which ends next year. In Jewish circles it was hoped that the Government would permit this number leave.

Edward M. M. Warburg, of New York, chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, said he had received the news, and declared: "It is a tragic end to one of the most constructive episodes in social-welfare work."

"The people helped to get on their feet through JDC programs are numberless," he said. "But most important have been those high standards of welfare work which the JDC introduced and which I know will be helpful in the future."

and Eighty-ninth Street on which it was decided several years ago to erect a new museum. Plans for the building, which will be of modern design, were drawn up five years ago by Frank Lloyd Wright, the architect.

The $6,000,000 balance of the cash bequest, the will suggests, should be held as an endowment, the income to be used for maintenance of the museum and the promotion of education and public appreciation of art.

Besides his widow, the survivors who share in the rest of the estate are Mr. Guggenheim's daughters, Countess Castle Stewart and Gertrude Guggenheim, of England, and Mrs. Barbara G. Obre, of Monkton, Md.; and four grandchildren; Arthur Patrick Avondale, Viscount Stewart and Simon Walter Erskine Stewart, sons of Lady Castle Stewart; and Peter O. Lawson Johnston and Michael Wettach, sons of Mrs. Obre.

Mrs. Guggenheim within three months of her husband's death may elect to use during her lifetime the Sands Point estate, known as Trillora Court, and a house at Charleston, S.C. Otherwise the properties will become part of the general estate.

To Lady Castle Stewart and Mrs. Obre, Mr. Guggenheim bequeathed in equal shares his interest in cattle ranch property in Idaho and Montana, and a game preserve and timber lands in Colleton County, South Carolina.

Personal effects, including art objects and furnishings of an apartment at the Plaza Hotel, New York, were left to Mrs. Guggenheim, with the rest of personal property to be divided between his widow and three daughters.

Mr. Guggenheim left $100,000 to be divided by his widow and executors among servants and employees. Other bequests included $50,000 to the children of Cora G. Rothschild, his sister and a similar amount to the children of a deceased sister, Rose G. Quicke; $5,000 to the Swiss Jewish Home for the Aged of Langnau, Switzerland, in memory of the decedent's parents; $2,500 to Adele Young, a former secretary; $2,500 to Sarah Fountain, widow of a former employee; $2,000 each to Paula Alexander and Flora E. Goldberger and "certain securities" to Albert E. Thiele, a business associate.

themselves able and useful immigrants, who readily adapt themselves to the new country and proceed rapidly to acquire western manners and culture. The JDC, the major American Jewish agency aiding distressed Jews overseas, was founded thirty-five years ago this month. In addition to its work in behalf of the Yemenite Jews, its operations have aided more than a million Jews since VE Day. By the end of 1949, JDC expects to have transported 240,000 immigrants, mainly from Europe, to new homes in a single year. Of these, 210,000 will have gone to Israel.

States. The penalty would be refusal of visa or deportation when necessary.

The commission charged that the 1945 cut-off date (denying entry to those who became D.P.s after December 22,1945) arbitrarily discriminated against at least 130,000 to 135,000 who would have been eligible under a January 1, 1948, deadline. Included in this group are about 80,000 Jews; the majority of the rest are Catholic. Among the Catholics are over 25,000 Croatians who fled religious persecution in Yugoslavia, and 13,000 Catholic Czechs. In addition, 24,000 Hungarian Catholics were disqualified by the cut-off date.

The report said that of the 109,968 D.P.s granted visas as of October 15, 43 per cent were Catholic; 26 per cent Jewish; 30 per cent Protestant and Orthodox; and one per cent of other religious affiliations, says the Herald Tribune.

Representative Emanuel Celler, Democrat, of New York, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said he desired to "correct" statements that the law covering displaced persons was not discriminatory with respect to Jews and Catholics.

"This incorrect report apparently has emanated from prejudiced sources," Mr. Celler said. He intimated he thought the report was circulated to stymie new D. P. legislation, which is pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee after recommittal in the closing days of the last session of Congress.

Recalling the provision of the House-approved D. P. bill of which he is author, Representative Celler said the major discrimination against Jews and Catholics is in the cut-off date of 1945 on which qualifications for a displaced person are based. Under the Celler bill the date has been shoved up to January 1, 1948, as the result of which 130,000 to 135,000 additional would be eligible, including 61,000 Jews, and most of the rest Catholics.

"Other discriminations in the present law are evident," Mr. Celler added. "There is the 40 per cent so-called 'Baltic provision,' which is a clear and unmistakable discrimination against both Catholics and Jews, and which has worked so badly that both the Estonian and Latvian relief association have petitioned to have it removed from the law."
